

Spotting a NORMAL Preschooler

A normal preschooler...

- lies and tells stories
- picks his nose
- chews with his mouth full
- runs instead of walks
- is afraid of the dark
- constantly wiggles
- splashes water all over the bathroom
- tells you "no"
- always asks "why"
- breaks important things
- embarrasses you in public
- hits, kicks, or bites other children
- smacks his food
- throws himself on the floor when he doesn't get his way
- stays dirty
- leaves toys on the floor
- loves to talk on the phone
- loves to dance
- loves to sit in your lap
- laughs giggles, and smiles
- is fascinated by the simple things in life, like butterflies, worms, lipstick, and firetrucks
- give lots of hugs
- tells you when he feels how much he loves you
- says the funniest things
- talks all the time
- wants your attention
- makes you laugh
- is silly and has fun
- loves to read and play

A normal preschooler brings many headaches, frustrations, and trying moments

A normal preschooler is here today and grown tomorrow.

Cherish your normal preschooler, after all HE IS NORMAL!
